DELI MEATS

HAM PROSCIUTTO

If bacon makes everything better, then prosciutto makes everything perfect. Prosciutto, which translates to "ham" in Italian, is typically made from the hind legs of pigs and is aged during a dry-curing process, to which the quality of the prosciutto is based on. Its velvety smooth texture and salty taste makes it a perfect option to wrap around fruit or use on charcuterie boards.

MORTADELLA

An Italian classic, Mortadella is instantly recognizable thanks to its rosy hue and specks of glistening white fat. It is made using select lean cuts of pork meat, ground into a fine paste, and stuffed in a casing to be cooked in special humidity-controlled ovens. Small cubes of fat are added to bring an element of sweetness to its characteristically full-flavor and firmness to its otherwise soft, velvety texture.

VINEGARS & COOKING WINES

It's useful to think about the purpose of wine and vinegar in a recipe. Sometimes wine or vinegar is included to add acidity, sugar, depth of flavor, or brightness to a dish. Other times its purpose is to give moisture, tenderize meat, or to deglaze a pan. The magic of a good vinegar or wine is that it can balance and sharpen ingredients flavors, and give chefs the ability to combine ingredients in a recipe that otherwise may not normally work well together.
